VI. GERMAN-CHINESE SYMPOSIUM ON HOSPITAL MANAGEMENT

25th Joint Meeting of the
Chinese-German and German-Chinese
Societies of Medicine

NEW WORLD WUHAN HOTEL

September 20–21

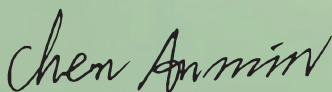

2012 Wuhan, P.R. China

The German-Chinese relationship in medicine has a tradition of more than a hundred years based on the foundation of the first school of medicine in Shanghai by the German medical doctor Erich Paulun. The German Chinese Society of Medicine (DCGM) continues this tradition and looks back on a successful cooperation with its partner society, the Chinese German Society of Medicine in Wuhan, and other Chinese provinces for about 30 years now. This initiative on a voluntary basis was founded 1984 by the German Medical Association and its Hans Neuffer Foundation.

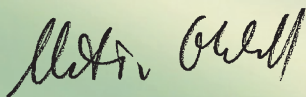

Since then the both societies have built up an important link between Germany and China by organizing annual conferences with topics on medical and scientific questions as well as health economic and health policy topics which are important for the two countries in view of the challenges in both health care systems. Based on this long grown mutual trust the societies have created a platform for exchange of excellent experts' knowledge.

This year the German Chinese Society of Medicine and the Chinese German Association of Medicine will organize their 25th Annual Meeting with the 6th German-Chinese Symposium on Hospital Management in Wuhan September 20-21 2012. A large number of well-known German and Chinese experts in the field of health care questions will discuss actual topics on problems of the health care reforms in their countries as well as telemedicine, pharmaceutical questions, new technological developments in medicine in Germany and China, hospital management, disaster medicine and future prospects respectively challenges in healthcare systems. Amongst others the conference will be supported by the Ministries of Health of both countries. Again we expect fruitful and interesting exchange between experts and guests of our joint meeting in Wuhan 2012.

We are looking forward to an interesting meeting in Wuhan,
